Truck wash

This truck had some problems last week when it used the river as a highway. Rick Smith, from Drayton Valley, is the owner of the vehicle that took a swim in the North Saskatchewan River just outside of town. The truck was retrieved the next day with two winch trucks.

Preliminary draft

First phase on new County is out

The first phase of the new county study is out. Ian Wight, manager of the policy and research section of the province's Municipal Affairs branch, says the education preliminary draft has been circulated to the school systems and the affected municipalities.

The balance of the study dealing mainly with the municipal side, is expected to be ready by the end of August.

The minister who ordered the original study is expected to receive his final draft copy in mid-September.

Bob Booth, chairman of the YES Group, a Drayton Valley-based organization pushing for the formation of a new county, says "It's taking longer than anticipated. But that's okay. It gives us a little breathing room."

"We were worried that the final report would come down during the summer when we still weren't organized and a lot of our people were away on holidays," Booth added.

Booth and his group plan to launch a membership campaign around the end of the month. "We hope to sell between 1,500 and 2,000 $2 memberships," Booth explained.

While no public meetings have been held, Booth says his executive has been meeting on a regular basis, planning their strategy.

Handicapped Association

Report calls for expansion

Garry Lorenz has been re-elected president of the Drayton Valley Association for the Developmentally Handicapped.

Joining Lorenz on the executive are vice-president Rev. Bob Aldrich, corresponding secretary Jack McLean, recording secretary Norma Howatt and treasurer Dave Becker.

Directors include Eleanor Pickup, Francis Peskunowicz, Margo LePage, Les Wolbaum, Tom Turner, John Mulligan, Sister K.T. MacDonald, Marion McKenzie, Tom McGee, Maxine Madsen and Isobel Martin.

The association wishes to thank Marty Prentice, Tom Spirling, Garland Hoel and Steve Serenas as they leave the executive.

In his report to the annual meeting, Lorenz said, "Support for our association has again this year been excellent."

"Particularly we extend our appreciation to the Town of Drayton Valley for forgiving our municipal taxes on our facilities, the County of Parkland for also forgiving our taxes and to the County of Leduc for their grant," Lorenz stated.

Thanks were also extended to the Sekura family for all their help at the charity auction, the volunteers and The Western Review for their coverage.

Tom Turner, chairman of the fundraising and publicity committee reports that the net income from the charity auction was $11,400.

In his report to the annual meeting, Turner pointed out that the association has out-grown their facilities and residences.

"It is the recommendation of this committee that the executive undertake a study to ascertain the feasibility of major expansion in both housing and facilities, for with room, nothing grows," Turner explained.

Bartley benefit brings 300 people

Dwayne and Bev Bartley have a lot of friends in the Evansburg area.

Injuries have sidelined Dwayne for the last two years resulting in some financial difficulties for the family. However, help came in the form of a benefit supper and dance hosted by the Holly Springs Community Club last Saturday night.

"I'm pretty sure there were 300 and some" people who came to the event, said president of the club, Margaret Webster.

The supper was no luck, "all the ladies who came provided so much food," commented Webster, adding there was enough food for the whole night.

Dwayne had just started back to work after a year and a half with a cast on his arm from a bone graft when he fell off a horse and shattered his pelvis in 15 places.

The benefit raised a little over $2000 which Webster said would help make a few of the farm payments.

She described the people who showed up as a "half and half crowd." Webster explained about half of the people there were from the Entwistle Community Church. As well, many people just came for the supper and left before the dance, or vice versa.

Webster summed up the benefit as a "good party."

Not all of the donations have been in cash. Some of the area residents have been helping around the farm or have offered to help harvest the crop.

Dwayne is in the Glenrose hospital in Edmonton for therapy having been transferred from the University of Alberta Hospital last week.

Black Gold is now homey

The Black Gold Inn has taken on a new look. About $60,000 in renovations has been done to the building including redesigning the tavern and restaurant.

The renovations gives the tavern and restaurant a "homey atmosphere rather than a rough one," according to owner Gunther Schmidt. He added that the interior has been "brightened up."

Schmidt said they are planning to do another $60,000 to $80,000 in additional changes.

The Black Gold will have the official opening for the renovated areas on Friday and Saturday.

The opening will include a "giant cake" according to manager Lance Grosco.

Also approximately 500 shot glasses with the Black Gold's new logo have been made up and will be distributed at the opening.

In addition to the opening the Black Gold is sponsoring a name contest. They are asking people to come up with names for the tavern and restaurant. They are looking for names related to the oil patch, Grosco said.

The additional renovations will start immediately and will include a banquet room, with seating for 60.

Situation serious

Fire risk extreme

The forest fire situation remains high to extreme despite some scattered showers on the weekend.

According to Ben Shantz, a forest protection officer from Rocky Mountain House, the situation is very serious.

Shantz said they have "people scattered around" and they hope to be able to get to any fire in 15 minutes.

He added that there is a campfire restriction from the Brazeau River south to the international border. Only fires in approved campground facilities are allowed.

This is the worst hazard this year Shantz said and he added that it looks like "fall more than summer" in many places because of the dry weather.

Shantz added that they are praying for aid to relieve the situation.

Opinions

Improved road needed for Brazeau route

The Brazeau area south of Drayton Valley could be Alberta's next park.

The potential is definitely there....development opportunity, wilderness, camping and fishing.

Missing is a proper road.

Realizing the development and tourist potential of the area, Drayton Valley MLA Shirley Cripps says a road into the area is high on her list of priorities.

A contract has already been awarded for upgrading the dusty road from Lodgepole to the Elk River turnoff. This section is scheduled for paving next summer.

If you've travelled the Brazeau road you know the section to be upgraded and eventually paved is the worst. Get behind a truck — it's not only impossible to pass, but next to impossible to see.

The road from Lodgepole to the Elk River turnoff is vital to the oil industry. Hundreds of vehicles related to oil exploration travel that road every week.

But the scheduled improvements do nothing for the thousands of people venturing into the Brazeau country. Beyond the Elk River turnoff, the road is filled with soft spots, and yes, it's very dusty and dangerous for any traffic.

This section of the Brazeau road should be included in the provincial government's upgrading and paving program.

There are obvious signs....two stocked ponds, three campgrounds and another being developed and interest in a golf course/restaurant, that development isn't far off for the Brazeau country near TransAlta's powerhouse project.

In order to keep pace with development, the area needs a better road. Not just between Lodgepole and the Elk River turnoff, but all the way.

I'm your typical armchair quarterback. I like my TV. But what I don't like is when the TV quits half-way through a show and the cable company offers little explanation.

You can bet they will still bill their Drayton Valley customers full price. Which, by the way, is almost double what we paid in Red Deer and the service is very questionable.

Jamie Platz, the 10-year-old cancer patient, has seen a dream come true. The Buck Creek boy always wanted to be a wildlife officer.

Battle with authorities

Alsike residents arm themselves against local prison

Alsike area residents have again armed themselves, joining forces to renew a continuing battle with provincial authorities over the Alsike Correctional Centre.

Angered by the solicitor general's recent decision to abandon plans for a 100-bed young offenders remand and custody centre in Edmonton's Clareview area because of neighborhood objections, the Alsike Residents Concern Group has sought a response from Drayton Valley's MLA Shirley Cripps.

"The situation described is almost identical to the incidents surrounding the establishment of the Alsike Correctional Centre in 1984. You may recall that the majority of the people in our community were also vigorously opposed to the opening of the jail," reads a letter sent to the MLA.

The group further quoted Solicitor General Ian Reid's reaction to the Clareview stand as, "We listened to their representations and said 'OK, we'll go somewhere else.'"

"We would like to know why Dr. Reid gave that answer to those people and didn't give us the same courtesy," Alsike Residents Concern Group spokesman Zig Springer said recently.

"On a per capita basis, the representation we had is greater than the representation in the city. We had a petition with 500 names — 500 is one hell of a lot of people if you look at it on a per capita basis."

Noting the Alsike group has exhausted almost every avenue of appeal, Springer added, "We are at the stage where we feel we are very demoralized... We feel we are not getting any response from anyone. But we are not going to give up, we know the neighborhood is with us. The resolution is a political one... we are not dumb, redneck bumpkins — that is the way we are being treated by this government."

The residents concern group was formed to protest the Alsike minimum security prison, converted from an alcohol rehabilitation centre in April 1984 to a prison, without prior notification or public input.

The Alsike Correctional Centre is also situated about five miles from a Youth Orientation Unit, a halfway house for young offenders.

"We are not saying we are against these facilities, we are saying this is not the place for them," Springer maintained, suggesting an urban centre — where police are able to respond to a call within five minutes — would be a more appropriate setting.

Repeated breakouts from the YOU centre have left Alsike area residents on edge, fearing for the safety of their families and apprehensive about facing Alsike prison escapees as well, suggested Springer.

Alsike residents are concerned about their property — some, like Zig Springer, have taken measures to protect it.

Last month, three young offenders "walked away" from the YOU facility, stealing trucks from adjacent landowner Stan Cygan and Warburg resident Doug Neuman, the Thoraby RCMP report.

According to Const. R.R. MacDonald, two of the escapees were arrested in Edson while a third remains at large.

Charges of being unlawfully at large, possession of stolen property and wilful damage were filed against the two youths, who will face sentencing in Edson court Wednesday, July 31.

Both vehicles have since been returned to their owners undamaged, Const. MacDonald reported. One was seized in Stony Plain while the other was found in Edson.

Alsike resident Cygan was victimized on two other occasions, with three trucks stolen in almost three years' time. Last June, a truck and shotgun were stolen by a YOU escapee — the youth fired a shot in a getaway attempt. Cygan was able to apprehend the 16-year-old youth, detaining him until the RCMP arrived on the scene.

"It's pretty frustrating... it's so sickening. I would just as soon sell out and get out of here. It is the same story over and over again and it's costing insurance money. The last time it took six months before I could get the vehicle settled," Cygan said.

"It is too much of a problem... They can't stop it. They've made all these promises and they haven't stopped anything."

H.W. Pickup

Local school is evaluated

By Neil Speers

The recent evaluation of H.W. Pickup Jr. High in Drayton Valley was good news for the on-troubled school.

Presented to the board of education last week, the evaluation done by Alberta Education had many good remarks about the school, although there were several recommendations made for improvements.

Wayne Blair, associate-director with Alberta Education, told the board a survey of parents had a "fair proportion saying the school improved in the last few years." He added, the parents commented the change in administration of the school was responsible for the improvement.

The team, which spent a week at the school to do the evaluation, "found it to be an effective school" and were pleased with what they found, explained Blair.

He mentioned, however, it was "striking that parents couldn't pick out any one thing good or distressing."

Blair said the evaluation team had many concerns about the physical condition of parts of the school and specific areas such as the science lab.

The Thoraby RCMP said there have been several "minor" incidents at the YOU centre during the past year, including a drug charge for "minor possession" and the "odd guy" running away.

The YOU centre has operated in the area for eight or nine years, said const. deputy minister of correctional services Bob King noted in a letter to Alsike residents dated Sept. 4, 1984, describing the discharge of a firearm on the Cygan property as an "unusual and isolated" incident. King pointed out in September that the Alsike Correctional Centre had operated without incident for five months.

This "illustrates that this program, if properly managed as occurs at present, should present no threat to the local community. The minimum security inmates transferred to Alsike are carefully selected before being transferred and do not have any history of violence," King wrote.

Resident Springer claims the community has become increasingly apprehensive with the opening of the Alsike Correctional Centre. "We are getting paranoid and locking things up."

"It has altered our lifestyles and our perception of danger... People are more apprehensive, especially people with teenage children and younger children. More people are getting guard dogs. If someone comes here at 2 a.m., what chance do I have?"

"I get up at least once or twice in the night to check if the dogs bark. Two years ago, if the dogs barked, you would think it was a skunk," Springer noted.

Board member Cecil Dawkins replied to that point saying, "Many of these things would have been done well over a year ago had funding been made available."

Another concern the evaluators had was for the special education program, commented Blair. The teacher working there is doing a great job with what she has, but, "Special Education need a great deal of help," Blair stated.

The counselling and guidance part of the school was a "highlight," said Blair, adding recommendations of forming parent advisory groups and offering more types of counselling.

As well, Blair suggested the math teachers, of which many of the staff at the school are, should get together in teaching methods, which they do not do now.

He also called the school library "admittedly disappointing" and commented on how the main office had a lot of work done on it, but not in the library.

There is also a need for a more consistent student evaluation policy, said Blair.

In all, the school falls well into the achievement average for the province and the county, explained Blair.

No comparison says MLA Cripps

By Gail Poon

Pressure exerted by Alsike area residents over the stationing of a correctional centre in the western portion of Leduc County cannot be compared by a group of Edmonton citizens, Drayton Valley MLA Shirley Cripps said Friday.

"It's not the same situation. The facility in Alsike is not a new facility; there was a change in utilization," she explained.

Cripps noted in the instance involving Edmonton Clareview residents, the government had plans of "building a new facility in addition to five already located in the immediate area."

The northeast sector of the city currently houses six centres within a four-mile radius, including the Belmont Correctional Centre, the Edmonton federal maximum security penitentiary and the Henwood Rehabilitation Centre, said the MLA.

"It would have been located in the middle of a residential area with the other centres surrounding it. Those people felt they had enough centres and the minister tended to agree with them."

Cripps said she is in the process of applying to a letter from the Alsike Residents Concern Group, which suggested its membership was not given the same consideration as the Clareview community.

The solicitor general recently agreed to abandon plans for a 100-bed young offenders' remand and custody centre in the Edmonton neighborhood, bowing to public pressure.

Alsike area residents continue to protest the existence of a minimum security prison in their community. The residents concern group was formed after an alcohol rehabilitation centre was converted to a prison in April 1984, without prior notification or public input.

Taxpayers do have a right to challenge Council

Dear Editor,

I know I can only speak for myself, but, I firmly believe our mayor and town council are always open to constructive criticism from the residents of the Town of Drayton Valley.

The editor is right! The taxpayers do have a right to know what is going on and as our mayor is constantly pointing out to us, nothing is written in stone, taxpayers always have a right to challenge any decision we make.

As elected representatives we represent the people of Drayton Valley the best we can. We try to listen to all sides, weigh the pros and cons and come up with decisions that will help and accommodate the largest number of residents in our town. We weigh our decisions with the town administration very carefully and make our decisions that we think are the best decisions, but I have no doubt that we sometimes do make mistakes. We try to do our best but unfortunately, "You cannot please all the people all of the time," particularly in this time of fiscal restraint. It is at this time that our mayor and my fellow councillors really appreciate your comments, criticisms and suggestions on how our decisions could be changed. We appreciate your comments as we are standing in line in a check-out counter, on the street or the calls you make to our offices.

We are not here to dictate to you, the community, on how things HAVE been done in our town, but are elected as town representatives, the arm of the community, to make decisions that hopefully will make this community a more pleasant place to live.

We, as your elected representatives, feel very responsible to the Drayton Valley taxpayers' dollar, particularly at this time when all levels of government are practising fiscal restraint. Believe me, we would love to do everything for everyone, however, that is just not possible, nor would it be responsible of us to suggest it to you, the taxpayers. That is why we must weigh decisions carefully and make the decisions we think will benefit the greater amount of people, in a responsible way.

We have an active, delightful community in Drayton Valley and I tell people when they move to town, it's a great place to live and raise a family. Let us all continue to work together to build on that base.

Respectfully yours,
Claire Carefoot
Town Councillor

Job well done

Dear Editor,

Recently I had the pleasure of joining many of my former classmates at the Frank Madock High School 25th anniversary celebration.

I must say I was pleased with the outcome and I wish to extend my thanks to all who made the event the success it was. As with all successful endeavours there is at least a hundred times as much work as there appears to be.

Thanks for a job well done.

Area farmers go to grasshopper seminar

Leaping, flying insects jumped from the grass, as area farmers walked into a hay field July 9 during a seminar on grasshoppers sponsored by Alberta Agriculture.

Entomologist Mike Delinski outlined both the life cycle and eating habits of the insects before describing the selection of pesticides available to kill the creatures.

"With grasshoppers it can be difficult to know how many it takes to destroy a field. Twelve grasshoppers per metre will eat enough to make it worthwhile to control them. Adult grasshoppers do more damage per metre than nymphs. The adults also fly," said Delinski.

Adults spread throughout a field may not do much damage, suggested the scientist, but after haying removes the food supply the insects can move to cereal crops.

Grasshopper females mate repeatedly through the summer, laying eggs underground that will hatch the following spring.

Assistant entomologist Jim Jones described the yearly cycle of the grasshoppers as they progress from the nymph stage through to fully-developed adults.

The number of insects born in a given season depends upon moisture in both the spring and fall. A moist season can have a negative impact on the grasshopper population.

In addition to describing the life cycle, the scientists also explained the range of materials to combat the pests.

Included in the list of chemicals are two which are particularly effective, 7-XLR and Furadan. Furadan is a pesticide which kills on contact while 7-XLR relies on feeding action to kill.

Farmers applying 7-XLR do not need protective safety gear while people using Furadan must have protective clothing and respirators. 7-XLR is slower-acting than Furadan but has a better residual effect, said Delinski.

Under provisions of provincial government legislation, farmers can be subsidized up to fifty per cent for the cost of their pesticides.

Road allowances were another special problem area, suggested the entomologists, falling under the jurisdiction of either the province or county.

Sod turned for fish farm

The sod has been turned for a $1 million fish plant at Wetaskiwin. High Arctic Marketing Corp. is building the 20,000 square-foot warehouse, processing plant and research station. The plant will serve as a distribution depository for a fleet of 12 trucks, self-contained retail store with walk-in freezers. A second phase, estimated at $3 million is also planned which will include a processing plant.

New campground

The Wetaskiwin Chamber of Commerce has started work on a new $250,000 campground located on Highway 18, three miles east of the city. The 10-acre campground will take three years to complete with a portion ready to use this summer.

Utility rates in Red Deer have increased 268 per cent in the last 12 years.

Rustlers' future uncertain

Graham Parsons of Sylvan Lake may take over the Alberta Junior Hockey League champion Red Deer Rustlers. After winning the Alberta championship last season, the Rustlers' owners put the club up for sale. When there were no takers, it appeared the team would take a one-year leave of absence. But Parsons, former Rustler general manager when they won the Centennial Cup in '81, is interested in operating the club this season.

Remand contract

A Calgary firm, Onmac Developments, has been awarded a $13 million contract to build Red Deer's long awaited remand centre.

Integrated Resource Plan conflicts with another government policy

By Neil Speers

While being a good idea, the Integrated Resource Plan conflicts with another government policy says the Pembina Institute for Appropriate Development.

In 1980, a United Nations report called the World Conservation Strategy (WCS) was published. In it was a plan keeping the resources of the world for as long as possible while still using them to man's advantage, stated Wally Heinrichs, co-director of the institute.

Both the federal government of Canada and the provincial government in Alberta, along with all of the other provinces, endorsed the U.N. plan and the Alberta government has since been working on local adaptation of it.

The WCS "revolves around getting rid of a couple of myths," explained Heinrichs. The first being how conservation does not mean just dealing with wildlife and wilderness, and the other being how conservation and development are not complete opposites, said Heinrichs.

Heinrichs pointed out the plan calls for both development and conservation of resources. "Sustainable utilization is somewhat analogous to spending the interest while keeping the capital," is how the WCS stated the idea.

However, the Integrated Resource Plan, which arose out of the Eastern Slopes Policy, is mostly concerned with economic development, explained Heinrichs.

Most of the problem, he said, is how the development of resources will profit the most people the quickest and "short-term benefit is where the politicians are."

What Heinrichs would like to see is the Integrated Resource Plan being held off for a short time until the provincial government finishes the local version of the conservation plan.

The Integrated Resource Plan is "just a draft" at this stage and if the WCS is not taken into account, it could "come back to haunt the government later," explained Heinrichs.

However, the WCS is "not mentioned anywhere" in the integrated plan, commented Heinrichs.

Wally Heinrichs

"It's like one hand doesn't know what the other hand is doing," commented Heinrichs.

In a letter addressed to the premier, the associate minister and several government officials, Heinrichs stated the conservation perspective of the original Eastern Slopes Policy of 1977, was replaced in the Integrated Resource Plan, of 1984, by a "policy which clearly encourages exploration, development, and extraction of non-living resources."

The original slopes policy, said Heinrichs' letter, "stressed that a conservative estimate is that a minimum of 70 per cent of the Eastern Slopes Region will be maintained in present natural or wilderness areas."

Local course draws up plans for additional nine holes

By Lorne Christensen
Plans for an additional nine holes at the Drayton Valley golf course have been drawn up. The drawing, by Robert Milligan of Jasper, is in the clubhouse where members are encouraged to make comments about the design.

The proposed plan calls for the course to be 6,995 yards-long compared to the present 3,245 yards of the existing nine holes.

With the new plan seven of the existing greens will be removed, meaning all but two of the 18 greens will be new.

Club pro Howard Vickers called the new greens for almost every hole a "bonus."

In addition to this the new greens will be, on the average, almost twice as big.

Currently the greens average about 3,000 square-feet with the new greens averaging about 6,000 square-feet, according to Vickers.

The present nine holes are on 70 acres of land, but when the new nine holes are added the total land covered by the 18-hole course will be 190 acres.

Vickers added that the construction of the new plan will begin this fall with the club setting a four-year goal for completion.

One of the more difficult holes on the new course will be a 580-yard par-five number 9. Golfers will be teeing off near where the present number 8 green is and hitting north towards the old cart shed. As Vickers pointed out, the creek will be at the 200- to 250-yard point, making golfers pull up short with their tee shots.

The new course will have four par five's ranging from 580 yards to 500 yards long and it will have four par three's.

The good weather on the weekend made it perfect for golf. The Lindale course was fairly busy. Cliff Popovici said the course was holding up well even in the hot weather.

Attendance at the Drayton Valley course was also high on the July 1st long weekend. Club pro Howard Vickers said they had over 300 rounds a day. Vickers said the high school reunion in town was probably one of the reasons for the large number of golfers.

The new driving range in Drayton Valley is getting a lot of use. Vickers said they can put 3,000 balls through the machine at once and they have been running out and using the picker twice a day.

Another new thing at the course will be getting a lot of use soon. The new cart shed should be ready by Friday according to Vickers.

The Drayton Valley club has another new feature that Vickers thinks may be a first. Golfers using rental carts can now have the luxury of a phone in their cart.

A mobile phone is available so golfers can "call anywhere" while they play the course.

The biggest reason why the course is invested in the phone was because of the large percentage of oilmen that play golf.

This way they can be close to communications even while out on the course.

Ceasars win two

The Drayton Valley Ceasars won two exhibition games on the weekend by scores of 21 and 7-0 over the visiting Grande Cache squad.

The Grande Cache team is hoping to join the Central Alberta Rural Town Soccer League for next year's season. Before the weekend series they had only lost once in seven exhibition games.

In the first game, on Saturday, Grande Cache scored early on a penalty kick. The Ceasars tied it up late in the first half when Danny Cavanagh took a pass from Nigel Buckland and scored from just inside the penalty area.

Grande Cache had few scoring opportunities against Ceasar keeper Simon Kelly. In the second half the go ahead goal came at the 65th minute when Andy Kelly, a right half back, picked up a loose ball. Kelly went past two Grande Cache players and scored from 35 yards out in the top right hand corner for the winning goal.

The two teams played again on Sunday with Grande Cache hoping to tie the series. But the Ceasars struck early getting two goals in the opening minutes and went on to win 7-0.

After the quick start the Ceasars continued their onslaught. Rod Beeler finished with three goals. Danny Cavanagh had two while Mark Buckland, Peter Keleporis and Andy Kelly each had one goal.

The Ceasars put three more balls into the net but all three goals were disallowed by referee Blake Little, the injured player/coach of the Ceasars who refereed both games.

Ceasars will face up again this Sunday at Lions Park when they take on the squad from Parkland. They are presently in fifth place in the league but have only lost one game so far. They have three games in hand over the league-leading Spruce Grove squad, the team they lost to.

Mosquitoes eliminated

The Drayton Valley Tutoring mosquito baseball team were eliminated from further provincial play on the weekend.

They travelled to Leduc to compete in the sub-zone playoffs and lost to Sherwood Park in the final 10-4.

The Drayton Valley team beat Leduc 21-10 in their first game with Bryson Kuzek on the mound. Tony Joe Kopp hit two home runs.

In the second game the team dumped Morinville 11-6 with Mike Waldron pitching. Fernando Cartwright put in a strong defensive showing being involved in eight put outs at second base.

Prior to the final, Drayton Valley also dropped a 15-0 decision to Sherwood Park.

Park Valley Pool

Almost 50,000 go swimming here

The new Park Valley swimming pool in Drayton Valley has been a busy place.

From the February 10 opening date until the end of June 49,992 people have used the pool.

One of the most popular times has been the leisure swim with 12,155 people using the pool during these time slots.

The use by schools is the second highest figure with 11,162 participants during school booked time.

Pool manager Charlene Jenkins is happy with the number of people that have used the new facility.

"It's excellent, it's just packed," Jenkins said. "We like it that way, it makes the summer go by fast," she pointed out.

Jenkins is also confident the attendance figures will remain high during the summer months.

She is predicting more than 20,000 more will use the facility during the summer months of July and August and that figure could climb higher if the warm weather continues.

Jenkins also pointed out that there hasn't been many complaints about the pool.

"The figures speak for themselves, Drayton Valley must be happy with the pool," she added.

Sponsor needed

Funny car driver coming off injury

By Lorne Christensen

When Brad Janishewski straps himself into his 1983 Corvette on Saturday he is hoping it will be the start of a successful season.

Janishewski will be participating in the Funny Car Summer Nationals in Calgary on July 20 and 21. It will mark the first time he has been racing in his funny car in 10 months.

Janishewski is coming off an injury to his knee and femur from a car accident, unrelated to racing.

The 22-year-old from Drayton Valley was involved in the accident March 16 and was told he wouldn't be able to walk for a year.

He was also told that he would have to spend up to 10 months in a body cast while his injuries healed. But now, less than five months later, he is preparing to race again.

Janishewski is hoping to do well this season on the funny car circuit and "pick up a major sponsor."

Currently he doesn't have a sponsor for his car, valued at $40,000.

Another goal he has "tentatively" set for himself is to be in the world finals in Spokane.

"I'm trying to decide if it's worth it, the competition is so tough," he added, saying that he knows of at least 12 cars that are better "calibre" than his.

But while this is on his mind Janishewski has still not fully recovered from his injury.

He says his leg has healed up enough and it isn't comfortable but it isn't painful either.

He is also faced with another problem.

While in the hospital because of the car accident he was diagnosed as having a cancerous lump in his throat.

But these problems are not deterring the "Canada Kid", as he is known on the circuit, from wanting to return to professional racing.

The upcoming race in Calgary does concern him.

"Calgary is a scary track," he explains.

He points out that it has a 60-degree turn after the finish line in the eighth-mile race, making it "tricky to drive."

But one problem he had with his car before on the Calgary track won't happen again.

In the past, Janishewski says he has had trouble with his parachutes not opening when he neared the end of the track.

"I spent a lot of time wondering whether the chute will come out."

Now he has two new chutes on the car and says this is just one of the many alterations they will be making to the car.

Another alteration will be making the car more aero-dynamic.

In addition to the upcoming racing season Janishewski is also planning to do some racing around Drayton Valley.

In September he and another racer will be doing some street racing in conjunction with the local auto club.

"All these people around here will have a chance to see what we do," he explains about the race, which is still being organized.

To Janishewski this is just another step in his future in professional racing.

"I'll be in funny cars for a long time," he adds.

Rodeo and reunion attended by locals

By Alma Johnson
727-2312

Congratulations to Dave and Doreen Banks on the birth of a baby boy June 27. David Robert greeted the world weighing seven pounds, 10 ounces at the Drayton Valley hospital.

Adriana Bettinazzi and her intended, Sylvio Soritto of Calgary, are visiting her sister Joan and Fred Uderink for a few weeks.

A large number of area folks attended the Entwistle rodeo, pancake breakfast and parade July 1 weekend. Congratulations to Rick and George Cherrington and Glenn Johnson who won the wild cow milking and to Allan Woloszyn who won a sum of money in a draw.

Ralph and Colleen Johnson and boys of Lloydminster were visiting his folks and also attended the rodeo. They also attended the Frank Maddock High School reunion in Drayton Valley the same weekend.

A number of other couples who attended this school also attended the banquet and dance.

Ray and Clifford Tufty went on a camping trip on the long weekend. The highlight of the trip was a ride on the skytrain at Jasper.

Don and Doris Allen of Campbell River, B.C. were surprise visitors and overnight guests at the home of Norm and Alma Johnson. They came from a reunion at Cedon and were on their way to visit at Josephburg.

Cynthia moving

McConnell Building Movers of Millet aided by TransAlta Utilities carried out the moving of the old Cynthia Community Hall recently. The hall, seen moving down the Cynthia/Easyford highway, has been sold to a farmer on the Bear Lake Road. Plans are underway in Cynthia to apply for a County of Parkland grant to replace the 50-year-old school house which was moved to Cynthia in 1961. Texaco plans to build a new warehouse on the old community site in Cynthia with the new community hall to be re-located in the residential area.

The Eagle has landed

The Eagle landed first.

The Division Eagle raft won in the modified category of the Amoco raft race on Saturday down the North Saskatchewan River.

The raft out of Amoco's Calgary office was navigated by Dave Taylor, Terry Manning, Cathy Manning and Jackie Lundberg.

Chaisson said they had 16 people aboard the raft.

The barrel class was won by Bob Nelmes and Terry Mizen's raft from Drayton Valley.

Nine rafts competed in the event and organizer Chaisson said everyone had a great time.

Track work begins soon

Work on the playing field next to Frank Maddock High School should begin soon.

Kurt Berndtsson, manager of facility services for County of Parkland schools, said within the next month work will start on creating a shale 400-metre track with two straightaways.

He explained work will start on grooming the field south of the school. As they begin to run out of money, then seeding will be started.

Berndtsson said the hardest part of the project was finding soil which will support a Sod strong enough for the rough handling required for sports.

The project is bringing all of the high school playing fields up to a consistent standard, explained Berndtsson.

Clowning around

The clowns had a fun time in the parade was just one of the many parade at Buck Lake on the weekend. activities during the stampe.

Family ties strong under Cancer

It is new moon today and the moon is in the fruitful water sign of Cancer.

Projects can be begun and since family ties are especially strong under Cancer, you could start tracing a family tree, planning a get-together or seeking out lost kin.

Apply chemical fertilizers. Water the garden. Trim to increase growth. If you mow the lawn now it will grow back fast.

Have your hair cut if you want it to grow better.

Start a new job or begin some new studies. Stock up with healthy natural foods for yourself and your animals.

Write letters and if you have ship-shod verbal agreements, this is the time to get them into writing to avoid future problems.

Write a new will or update the old one.

July 23-24 will find us in the lovely harmonious sign of Libra. If you want to buy pedigreed animals for showing, you'll get them cheapest now.

Your artistic talents have never been better. Paint. Pick and arrange flowers.

Give a party or attend one to find people on your wave length.

Whose lucky week is it?

Places remains our luckiest sign until July 23 with the most fortunate birthdays falling between Feb. 20 and 26.

July 24 the luck shifts to Aries, our luckiest speculators for the coming month. Aries has the same lucky number as Pisces — four.

Important days this week

July 17 Disneyland is 30 years old.

July 18, 1848 the first women's rights convention was held in Seneca Falls, N.Y. and women's lib was born. These early women were fighting for rights we now take for granted. Thanks to them — the right to vote and the right to have equal education.

July 22 is the feast day of St. Mary Magdalen, the sister of Lazarus, of whom Jesus said, "Her sins, which are many, are forgiven for she loved much." She is often referred to as the model of penitents.

Makin interested

Makin Pulp and Paper haven't lost their interest in building a mill in the Drayton Valley-Rocky Mountain House area.

According to Jim Peacock, a company relations spokesman, Makin hasn't lost interest in building a pulp mill in the Brazeau timber reserve. This statement comes just after Makin announced plans for a $235-million coiled paper manufacturing plant about 50 kilometres north of Vancouver.

Breton dentist appointed

Breton dentist Gerhard Gunther was elected to the board of directors of The Denturist Society of Alberta at their recent convention in Jasper.

Gunther served as Society president from 1964 to 1966. He is also a past member of the Alberta Government's board of examiners which tests and licenses denturists.

The four year denturist education and training program now consists of two years at the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology followed by two years of internship in a denture clinic together with Alberta Government proficiency examinations. Denturists provide denture services direct to the public. They take the impressions, construct the dentures and fit them in the patient. The efficiency and accuracy of conducting the complete process usually results in lower costs and high satisfaction to the patient.

4-H exchange programs

Five Albertans take trip

Five Alberta 4-H members will be participating in the 4-H Inter-Provincial Exchange.

This Canada-wide program is sponsored by the Royal Bank of Canada. This summer, 50 4-H'ers from across Canada will travel from their home to another province from July 4 to 17.

Alberta's five 4-H youth are Marina Lieveise of Beaveridge travelling to British Columbia, Allan Clemens of Mossleigh travelling to Saskatchewan, Jennifer Wilson of Erskine travelling to Nova Scotia, Lisa Keirle of Drumheller travelling to Quebec, Grace Brown of Ryegmore travelling to Newfoundland.

On Wednesday, July 3 the Alberta 4-H'ers attended a send-off banquet in Calgary hosted by the Royal Bank of Canada. The following morning the delegates departed for their host province. The interprovincial exchange gives the Alberta delegates a chance to visit a different province, live with a host family, and meet 4-H'ers from other parts of Canada, says 4-H summer exchange coordinator, Delin Sheehan at Alberta Agriculture's Airdrie office.

During the same period, families in Alberta will be hosting 4-H delegates from other provinces. Raleigh Kett and family of Wainwright hosting Sonya Price of British Columbia; Walter Bak and family of Grande Prairie hosting Jeff Torgimson of Saskatchewan; Shelly Moncrieff and family of Carvel hosting Kimberly Ricketts of Newfoundland; Perry Olechowski and family of Medicine Hat hosting Karen Crawford of Nova Scotia; Heather Tabor and family of Delia hosting Sonia Livernache of Quebec.

Through this exchange, it's hoped that Canadian 4-H members will develop an understanding and appreciation for other Canadians and for their 4-H program, says Sheehan.

Carefoot appointed

Claire Carefoot, a Drayton Valley town councillor, has been appointed to the ministers advisory committee on university affairs. The appointment was made by the Minister of Advanced Education Dick Johnston. In her new position, Carefoot will be the liaison with four universities at Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge and Athabasca.

superintendent of schools, said a school bus stop will be set up at the trailer court and the bus will then "swing along the northern edge of town." For $30 per year, students can ride to school, he explained.

Tkachuk commented this is a convenience for many students who have to walk a long way to school, in particular for those in elementary.

The practice has already been set up in Spruce Grove and Stony Plain, he stated.

The decision on bus-ing by the county comes on the heels of a petition, which pointed out the long walk children faced through the busy downtown area.

Drayton Valley couple

Boscher and Myck take marriage vows

The bride entered the church on the arms of her parents.

Wearing a pre-Victorian dress of organza with a satin lining, Karen Boscher made her wedding vows with Glen Myck on June 15.

The ceremony was held at the Drayton Valley United Church officiated by Bob Aldrich, assisted by Mark Sallah.

Karen's dress, designed by Nitzza Rosenfeld of Rapsoy in Edmonton, featured a bodice and sleeves of imported Italian embroidered satin cut-out lace. The ruffles on the bottom and around the stand up collar were held by hand inserted wire.

Wearing a head piece imported from Rome, made of Venetian mouth-blown beads, Karen carried three large Cattailaya orchids with 'bridal roses and baby's breath.

Glen wore a silver-tailed tuxedo with a boutonniere of two white roses and stephonis.

The maid of honor was Darlene Boscher, a cousin of Karen's who came up from Saskatoon.

With her as the bridesmaids were Diane Smith and Cecile Houle, both of Drayton Valley. All three wore dresses of lavender polyester stain with a scoop neckline blouse, batwing sleeves and a V closing in back. There was a gathered insert which started at the waist and slanted to hip level. The dresses were floor-length with a curving hemline, slit above the knee.

Wearing pink, tear-drop shaped hats, with a half-veil and a ribbon of pearls the maids carried bouquets of Cymbidium orchids with Stephanis.

The best man was Karl Pischke accompanied by Trent Myck and Ken Boscher as the groomsmen. Each wore silver tuxedos with boutonniere of single white roses and stephonis.

Karen's mother wore a full-length pink chiffon dress appliqued in metallic sparkles of silver and rose. Her father wore a navy pinstripe suit with a boutonniere of pink roses.

The groom's mother wore a light blue dress and a corsage of three white roses.

The ushers were Marvin Pischke and Vernon Boscher with Vincent Boscher taking registration of the guests.

The soloist was Val Sneider with Dianne Nickiforuk on piano.

At the reception, held in the Legion Hall, the master of ceremonies was Scott Day. The toast to the bride was given by Lyndon Hesron and grace was said by Ed Van Ember. Music was supplied by Dave Ellis.

The couple plan to make their home in Drayton Valley.

Money for seniors

The Wildwood Senior Citizens' Club is one of 14 organizations throughout the province to receive funds from the New Horizons program.

The Wildwood seniors will receive $2,380 to develop their carpet bowling in their centre. The largest grant, $18,596, was awarded to the Calgary Chinese Catholic seniors to develop a drop-in centre to relieve the social isolation of its members, recent landed immigrants from the Far East.

Reunion donations

The Frank Maddock High School reunion committee has made three donations totaling $2,500.

The committee, who hosted 1,100 former students at a very successful reunion during the Canada Day weekend, has decided to give $1,000 to the Richie Woods Scholarship Fund.

Another $1,000 has been donated to the Drayton Valley Lions and $500 to the Lioness club for their donation of labor as security people at the reunion.

Committee member Brenda Thompson reports the reunion books are still open as all the bills haven't been paid. But it looks like the weekend realized about a $6,000 profit.

Once everything has been paid, the committee will announce plans for the balance of the money.

Local couple rent motorhomes

For people who do not want to spend tens of thousands of dollars for a new motorhome, there is Clurysek Rentals.

Shirley Clurysek and her husband Ken, have two motorhomes and a tent-trailer which they are renting out from their home in Drayton Valley.

They had originally bought a motorhome for themselves and were renting it out through an Edmonton company. Unfortunately, the service they received from that company was not up to what they felt it should be.

"When you own a unit, you want that unit taken care of," she said, adding she makes sure each unit is cleaned thoroughly and serviced before it goes out again.

This spring, they bought a second motorhome, and a tent trailer. The couple wanted to see how much of a market there would be in Drayton Valley.

"June was busy," Shirley commented, but added July has been a little slower.

Only one fireplace needed

Home is a new shelter from high energy costs

What would you pay for a home which only needed the heat of one fireplace even in -30 degree Celsius weather.

But wait — that's not all. It would only cost eight per cent more to build than a regular house. Now how much would you pay?

According to Fred Lemieux of New Shelter Homes, you would not have to pay much more than for any other home in Drayton Valley because it would not sell.

He is currently working on a house for Dave and Betty Meston of Drayton Valley, near Violet Grove.

The two main methods Lemieux is using to improve the efficiency of the house are forming an airtight layer and using the Larsen Truss to provide space for an extra eight inches of insulation.

The Larsen Truss is two 2x2s held apart by 6 1/4-inch by 8-inch "webs" of plywood. The truss is then attached to the outside of what is otherwise a normally constructed frame house.

In fact, Lemieux said if a person was going to put new siding on their home anyway, they would be "crazy not to retrofit the house" with the truss system. He stated an average home would cost about $3000 for the trusses, vapor barrier and insulation.

The vapor barrier is an important part of the system. Using 6 mil and acoustic sealant, the vapor barrier keeps warm air from leaving the building in unwanted places.

"The idea of an airtight home is not to stop venting, but to control it," explained Lemieux.

He also says venting is needed to remove pollutants, "the major pollutant being water vapor," which can eventually rot the frame of the house. As well, chemicals used in almost everything in the house have to be removed from the air.

If the fan Lemieux installs to help with venting breaks down, he said just opening windows on opposite sides of the house for 10 minutes will completely change all of the air.

And because most of the heat is stored in walls and floors, even extremely cold air will not make the whole house cold.

Another innovation he uses is a "high-heel" truss on the roof which allows 12 inches of insulation right up to the edges of the attic. Most trusses come to a point at the edge reducing the insulation a person can put there.

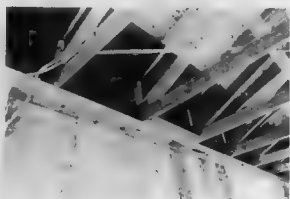

Putting an outside entrance to the attic is important for keeping the vapor barrier intact, Lemieux stated. With an entrance from a closet or hallway, as they usually are, the vapor barrier has a large hole in it and there is a weak spot in the insulation, he said.

In all, the house should require about 25,000 BTUs of heat per hour when it is -30 degrees outside, commented Lemieux. However, they installed a heater that can put out 75,000 BTUs per hour.

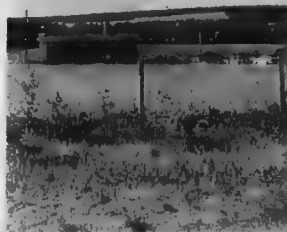

Lemieux said they went with the large heater because one that put out only 50,000 BTUs actually cost more as there is little demand for them.

Constructing energy-efficient homes has been Lemieux's area of expertise since working with John Larsen, inventor of the Larsen Truss, about five years ago.

Poet's Corner

Mother and Father

They started out, just the two of them,
In love as others do.
They built a home and family,
Had many dreams come true.

With sorrows, troubles, hurts and pains,
They carried on, let nothing stain.
For with their sorrows came their strengths
To search for ways to let love gain.

They learned a lot that others don't,
From hardships, struggles, hurts and bumps.
To take the long in good and bad,
To make the best with what they had.

Traditions, customs, roots and tales,
They held them dear,
They would not fail.

For from their past they brought us up,
Their children - boys and girls,
To respect your elders, respect yourself,
But most respect each other.

Learn to trust in all but once,
Don't judge upon the cover.
For underneath there always is
Some good in one another.

With heads held high, not to look down,
Learn to be patient and hold your ground.
Learn to have wisdom, knowledge and pride,
For some day you may need someone by your side.

There are nine of us,
And I'm sure we can say
We learned a lot from our younger days.
We had the best teachers,
As you can see.

And we hope that some day
Your grandchildren agree.

The best at whatever life has to offer,
Is taught in us early
By Mothers and Fathers.

Happy Anniversary, Mom and Dad

County won't prevent two-price fee

Leduc County won't prevent local municipalities implementing a two-price system to distinguish urban-rural users of recreation facilities, built with major cultural/recreational grant monies.

"If Thorsby wants to initiate a two-price system, we will drop the agreement...the county has left it so if something comes up, we will rescind bylaws at that time," explained county recreation director Beverlee Parker.

Although the MCR grant is now obsolete, she noted an agreement has traditionally been required between the county and a municipality before funds were released.

"Through the MCR program, the county initiated an MCR agreement stating if we give something to an organization to put into a facility, they cannot charge rural people more than municipal people," Parker said recently.

Following a recent decision by county council to release $35,000 toward the capital costs of Drayton Valley's indoor swimming pool, without a signed agreement, councillors opted to offer other municipalities the same privilege.

At a June 7 meeting, Coun. Albert Klapstein suggested, "If we are not applying the agreement to Drayton Valley, we should not be applying it to Calmar, Leduc or anywhere else. They have the same right Drayton Valley does to charge a two-price system."

Secretary-treasurer Fred Rolof pointed out the Drayton Valley settlement dealt with the last of the county's MCR matters, noting agreements for all other projects are in place.

"The 'no two-price system' goes on in perpetuity; it goes on for as long as that money goes. As long as those facilities they used MCR monies for stand, they have a commitment," he added. His suggestion that a letter be sent to the parties currently partner to the contract, outlining the deletion of the two-price clause, was not adopted by council.

School reunion festivities filmed

If you were at the Frank Maddock High School reunion you could be on film. Representatives from Pro-Com Multi-Media Group Inc. of Edmonton were on hand to record the 25th reunion on tape.

While everyone was meeting old friends and renewing acquaintances the cameras were rolling.

The two, Kim Ryan and Patrick Boyce, covered the entire weekend ranging from the ceremonies and dance Saturday night to the breakfasts and family events on Sunday.

The VHS or Beta tapes will be available in about four weeks and will be a "documentary style" according to Ryan.

"We'll make a whole story out of the reunion," Ryan added.

The half-hour long production will also include various shots taken around Drayton Valley. Some of the pictures taken by The Western Review during reunion weekend and the tribute to the late Richie Woods in May could also be included in the final copy.

The idea for this came from the company doing high school graduations.

"It's a step farther into reunions," Boyce explained in saying they hope to do the 76th anniversary of Victoria Composite school and the 50th of Jasper Place school in Edmonton.

It's an idea they hope will catch on.

Both Ryan and Boyce think people will buy the videos to send to relatives and friends.

"A lady at the school ordered a tape for her daughter in England," Boyce added.

The tapes can be ordered through Brenda Thompson at Brendan New and Used in Drayton Valley.

Ryan and Boyce hope to sell tapes to about 300 people from the reunion.

"We expect almost everyone will want one," Ryan said.

Chamber going strong

The Chamber of Commerce in Drayton Valley is still going strong.

Chad Nichols, president of the chamber, said it looks like the chamber is off to a good start this time.

He explained there have been several chamber of commerce set up in the town but they usually petered out after a short time.

They would start with 23 members and the meetings would wind up with 12 people attending, "six of those would be invited guests," he commented.

However, the current chamber has more than 100 members who are actively participating, Nichols said. Although there will be no meetings in July or August, the chamber will meet in September to get elections and such out of the way early, commented Nichols.

The Chamber is also hosting the trade show in September.

It's minus 40 degrees. You're working outdoors in the oil patch, where a breathing apparatus is part of your standard safety equipment. All is not unbearably cold, however, if you're breathing air supplied by Garry Scallen's Hi-Level Safety Service.

Garry pioneered the idea of pre-warming breathing apparatus air so oilpatch workers would be more comfortable. That's just one of the reasons his safety service company is a front-runner in the business.

But it wasn't easy getting started. Garry went to conventional lenders back in 1981, but their position was one of extreme caution towards financing new companies. So, he talked to AOC.

AOC recognized the merit of Garry's unique service idea, and after reviewing its potential, provided the financing he needed to get started. Today, Hi-Level Safety Service, (1983 Ltd.), has offices in Grande Prairie, High Level and Red Deer, and employs over a dozen Albertans.

If you have a sound business idea, but you're unable to obtain financing through regular lending sources, call or visit your nearest AOC office and ask for our brochure, Financing Alberta Business.

Strawberries Vitamin C rich

Busy berry season at this time of year

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

The busy berry season is with us once again, with strawberries at the top of the list. Our cultivated garden strawberry had its beginning in the 18th century when a French army officer brought home some wild strawberry plants from South America. This wild strawberry was crossed with a North American variety already being cultivated in French gardens. The result was the plump, bright, rich-tasting berry that we enjoy today.

Since strawberries are very perishable, best results will be obtained if the berries are picked when dry; wet fruit spoils more rapidly. Also, pick in the morning to escape the mid-day heat and place the berries in shallow containers to prevent crushing.

When buying strawberries, look for dry, bright-colored ones, free of dirt and white spots. Whitish berries generally mean that they were picked when immature and will lack flavor. Flavor depends upon variety and ripeness, not upon size. Berries carry a price tag but no label that states they are "bruise resistant", therefore they need your best care. This starts in the store. Pick them up last on your shopping trip and make sure they are put on top of the bag, not at the bottom. At home sort them to remove the bruised ones. Refrigerate in a flat pan covered loosely with waxed paper. Use them within a couple of days washing gently just before serving.

To wash, dip the berries gently and quickly in cold water lifting the berries out with your fingers to let sand and dirt fall to the bottom. Do not let them soak in water as they lose their flavor and vitamins. Berries keep longest with the caps on, therefore they should not be removed until the berries are clean and dry.

Firm, fully-ripe berries may be frozen so you can enjoy their fresh fruit flavor all winter. To freeze strawberries, leave them whole, cut in quarters or slice. Pack them in dry sugar using 125 mL sugar to one litre whole berries, or 175 mL sugar to one litre quartered or sliced berries. Frozen berries may be stored one year at -18° C.

Frozen berries used as fresh fruit are better if not thawed completely, but rather served with a few ice crystals remaining. For pies and baked puddings, it is not necessary to completely thaw the fruit. Rather, thaw only enough to separate the pieces, and then proceed as with fresh berries. Reduce the amount of sugar in the recipe if sugar was added to the fruit before freezing.

Strawberries are full of goodness. One cup of berries contains about three times as much Vitamin C as your body requires in a day (almost as much as eight ounces of orange juice provides) and contains only 58 calories.

This time of year when strawberries are in season and plentiful, serve them in the simplest of combinations. Serve them whole or sliced with whipped cream, sour cream or ice cream. Add them to a fresh fruit salad, to a cottage cheese salad, plate or to top the breakfast cereal. Strawberries always make a superb dessert in a pie, shortcake, souffle or bavarian.

Strawberries go well any time of the day and with their rich color and flavor are popular in both simple and elaborate desserts. For a few strawberry recipe ideas, call my office at 542-6388 and ask for the publication 'Strawberries and Raspberries'.

Stasiuk talks to visitors

Tracy Stasiuk is spending her summer talking about Drayton Valley.

The Grade 10 student at Frank Maddock High School is a first-year tourist counsellor employed at the Chamber of Commerce visitors booth.

People

"You meet all sorts of people in this job," she explains.

"Most of them want the Alberta maps and accommodation guides," Stasiuk added.

Stasiuk, who has lived in Drayton Valley 18 months says a lot of area people are making good use of the service the tourist booth has to offer. A lot of town and area residents are picking up new naps before heading out on holidays.

"Most people want campground information, some even want the back roads maps," she added.

The workload at the tourist booth is split with Carolyn Eckert.

"One week I work the morning shift and the next week we switch to the afternoon and early evening shift," Stasiuk commented.

When Tracy Stasiuk isn't being a goodwill ambassador for Drayton Valley she enjoys biking and reading.

200 farms affected Grasshopper problem

There's a serious grasshopper problem in the Drayton Valley.

According to district agriculturist Doug Walkey, about 200 farms north and east of Drayton Valley are being affected by the grasshopper infestation.

Walkey says the reason for the grasshopper problem, which is the worst this area has seen in years, is because of three very warm years.

"It's much worse than before. In other years grasshoppers were spotty in the area," Walkey says.

For now, farmers are handling the problem with spraying.

According to the district agriculturist, the farmers could be looking at a 30 per cent reduction in yields.

"That's a lot," Walkey explains.

Besides the grasshopper problem, Walkey says the area could use some rain.

Board eyes improvements

The Drayton Valley Recreation Board wants to do something with all the green areas in town.

During the summer members of the board will look at all the open spaces with an eye to what improvements can be made.

Parks that will fall into this category include McKenzie, Eastview, Elementary B school, Dely, Watino, Chester, Little Lions, Frank Maddock, St. Anthony's, Sekura, Sunrise and West Valley.

Board members are being asked to look at the design of the parks, their deficiencies, what's missing and what the area needs are. Talks will also be held with the residents surrounding the various parks.

During the summer the board members will file their reports with recreation director Calvin Bennefeld and in September all the information will go towards the town's five-year plan.

It is the hope of the recreation board that some of the service groups and organizations will take on one of the parks as a project and erect some equipment.

SECOND TIME AROUND

Fifteen years after she first tried to do it, Mary Tyler Moore is finally going to get a chance to play a divorcee on her new CBS television series. The new show, titled "Mary," will begin production in September.

It's largely been forgotten, but the creators of the landmark "Mary Tyler Moore Show" had originally intended to have Miss Moore play television's first divorcee.

Alfre Woodard

together

So this time around, Miss Moore will play a divorcee who works on a "helpline" column for a small daily newspaper in Chicago. She will often find herself at odds with her boss, but will find herself curiously attracted to him as well (Ah, those proverbial undercurrents).

CENTRAL CASTING — Alfre Woodard will guest star in several segments of NBC's "St. Elsewhere" this coming season. Miss Woodard, who was nominated for an Oscar in 1983 for her performance in "Cross Creek," in which she co-starred with Mary Steenburgen, will play Dr. Roxanne Turner. Preliminary plans call for her to clash frequently with Dr. Mark Craig (William Daniels).

Even if you missed "Cross Creek," which was not widely seen despite mostly favorable reviews, you may still be familiar with Miss Woodard's work. She won a 1984 Emmy as Best Supporting Actress for playing the distraught mother whose child was accidentally killed by police on "Hill Street Blues."

The network nixed that idea, and Mary Richards became a jilted woman instead. The former fiancée quickly faded from view, and viewers later had reason to be thankful that the network had been so stodgy, as Mary Richards developed into the epitome of the independent 1970s single woman.

Times have changed considerably since "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" debuted in 1970. Prime-time shows have since featured divorcees galore, and John Ritter and Mary Cadorella barely caused an eyebrow to be raised when they recently played an unmarried couple living
